Adoption Services

Are you a Birth Mother or other Birth Family Member?

If you are the Birth mother or another birth family member of a child who was placed for adoption or fostering in the past, Family Care Adoption Services can offer you support.

Although birth families do not have a legal right to information about their relative, Family Care Adoption Services may be able to help you

How can we help?

We hold the records of several Agencies which placed babies in adoption or fostering in the past and we can access others.

You may wonder how your adopted relative is doing now that they are an adult, you may have information that you want to share, or have questions about the possibility of contact.

We may be able to give you some information, or leave a letter from you on file in case your relative comes forward themselves.

Sometimes we can make contact with your birth relative for you, depending on the situation.

If you and your relative both agree to keep in touch, we will help you plan and your contacts and will offer support to all of you through the process.

If we do not hold the records for your adult birth relative, or we are not the Agency that can help you, we will try to identify the right organisation for you.
